Editor's Note:

The Merrion opened in 1997, originally four magnificent Grade 1 listed Georgian townhouses, built by Lord Monck. Once home to wealthy Dublin merchants and nobility, including the Earl of Mornington whose first son, Arthur Wellesley (first Duke of Wellington) was born at No 24, the hotel is now one of Dublin's most treasured destinations. Located in the heart of the city, opposite Parliament House, The Merrion houses one of finest collections of contemporary Irish art, private Georgian style gardens, the award winning Tethra Spa, The Cellar Restaurant and Cellar Bar - both located in the underground vaults, The Drawing Rooms with original fireplaces, antique furniture and world-class art and Bar No.23 - the small, sophisticated lounge for hotel guests.
